

Daniel Scott

Adjunct Professor,
School of Business and Professional Studies,
Concordia University Irvine

E-mail: dan.scott@cui.edu

Biographical Information:

As an individual committed to growth, Dan is a strong proponent of the integration of values, business, and education. He desires to make positive contributions in the education and development of others by helping develop creative learning and working environments. Dan's professional and academic experience highlights the value that intellectual resources have in the workplace when combined with the professional knowledge and practical skills needed to define, create, and deliver essential growth strategies in organizational settings.

As a leader with more than 17 years experience of work for the ARAMARK, a Fortune 500 company that is a leader in professional services, Dan has enjoyed the opportunity to work with hundreds of employees in a variety of education, health care, and professional settings. As an educator with over 22 years of teaching at the university level and professional training experience, Dan has played an active role in creating dynamic learning environments for university students and professional trainees.

As a lifelong learner, Dan has ongoing opportunities for personal and professional development. Dan received his undergraduate degree from Biola University, Master's degree in Business Administration from Concordia University, and is currently completing his dissertation, Exploring Management Education in China: A Qualitative Review of Supply and Demand Elements to fulfill the requirements to receive a Doctor of Business Administration degree.

In 1988, Dan, was recognized as an Honor Roll Recipient in the County of Los Angeles for his exemplary service at Biola University. In 1994, Dan, was honored to receive the Marion E. Wade Award of Excellence, for his superior achievement in the areas of Service Quality, Management Control, Supportive Management, Financial Management, and People Development. In 2000 and 2001, Dan received additional awards of merit for service quality and financial management.

Dan, his wife Mary, and youngest daughter Anna live in Irvine, CA with their energetic beagle, Chip. Dan enjoys spending time with his family, golf, and travel.

Areas of Academic and Business Interest:

Organizational Management
International Management Education
Organizational Development
Business Ethics and Social Responsibility Theory and Practice
Small Business Development