

ALA 311 Writing for the Workplace 3 units

In every profession, writing is an important aspect of effective communication. This course explores the basics of good writing, including the proper application of grammar and APA style rules. The use of technology to access and share information is also examined.